

Help seniors overcome common challenges to exercise

We all know exercise is good for us. It helps us live longer, healthier lives. This is especially true for seniors. In fact, it is one of the most important things seniors can do for their health. It can help prevent or delay many chronic conditions, help improve balance and prevent falls and so much more.<sup>1</sup> But how can we best help our senior patients?

Seniors face many challenges when trying to get and stay active. It is our job to help them overcome objections and challenges they may face to help them live their best lives.

Challenges to exercise

Some seniors may be hesitant to exercise, but there are ways you can help them overcome these common challenges.

- Pain and discomfort. It's no secret age brings new aches and pains, not to mention some chronic conditions that create their own level of discomfort. But many chronic conditions can benefit from low exertion exercise and flexibility training.<sup>2</sup> The good news is that you're there to help facilitate them getting active.
- Fear of injury. Many seniors don't want to exercise because they are afraid they will fall and hurt themselves. What they don't realize is how much physical activity can help them prevent falls.<sup>3</sup> There are many exercises seniors can do to improve their balance. They can even try this 7-Day Better Balance Challenge with SilverSneakers®.
- Can't afford a gym membership. Gyms can be expensive, but 1 in 4 seniors are eligible for SilverSneakers.
